This week’s survey is the twenty-ninth round. The survey question is “Recently several people charged with violating the national security law have been denied bail. How reasonable or unreasonable do you think such decisions are?”. Data collection will start later today and the results will be released next Friday (December 18) afternoon. This is the last “We Hongkongers Panel Survey” in 2020, whether it will continue next year and in what form is still under discussion, details will be announced to the public as soon as possible.
